Health minister visits

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

A short visit by the Alberta Health minister left nothing concrete for area hospitals.

Shirley McLellan made a short visit to the hospitals in Didsbury, Olds and Sundre last week, touring the facilities and meeting with hospital boards, but the meetings left the board members and administration with no more information about upcoming health care cuts or system changes than they had before.

"Most of the answers, I think, were left to the round table in Red Deer (August 26 and 27)," said Dennis Stabblar, Mountain View Health Care Administrator. "She gave us some basic information on what the government is thinking, but really gave us nothing to help us plan."

The visit to the area hospitals was the first for McLellan who took over the health portfolio under the Klein administration. Stabblar said the Mountain View Health Care Centre had invited the new minister to visit their hospital after answering a letter she sent out shortly after she was appointed.

"The MLA also thought it was a good idea that she tour all three hospitals as well because of the joint discussion we are undergoing," he said.

Discussion of the proposed amalgamation of the three hospitals was one of the major topics during the meeting with the minister according to Stabblar.

"She felt that she could change the legislation to help us out if we decided to go that way," he said. "But she also felt that there wouldn't be a standard, no legislation of a certain regional standard for the joining of provincial hospital boards.

"I'm a strong believer in local decision making," McLellan said in a press conference after the board meetings. "I think amalgamation is something the boards have got (to decide) to do. The local people here are the best suited to determine their health needs."

After her tour of the hospitals, McLellan also said she was pleased the facilities and their staff.

"I'm very impressed with the facilities and certainly with the way they are maintained," she said. "I'm also extremely impressed with the obvious com-

Nothing new

Health Minister Shirley McLellan had nothing new to share with area hospital boards last week when she spent a morning touring the three local hospitals and talking with their boards. McLellan, pictured with MLA Roy Brassard and Olds Hospital Administrator Candace Spurrell, said she would consider introducing legislation which would allow the three boards to amalgamate, but had little to share on future funding cutbacks or program planning.

Counselling ordered for assault

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

A Linden area man has been ordered to undergo counselling after he plead guilty to assault in Didsbury Provincial Court last week.

Arnold Wiebe, age 65, was ordered to undergo the counselling as part of probation conditions set out by the judge at Wiebe's trial last week.

Wiebe had been charged with sexual assault but plead guilty to the lesser offence of assault. He was charged by Didsbury RCMP after two young girls complained of harassment at the Didsbury Aquatic Centre earlier

New guidelines made for subdivision hearings

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

County council has voted to change the way they handle subdivision applications.

County Reeve John Grimstead said the council will now hear some of the information about the subdivision application before it votes on first reading of any sub-division by-law.

"Before we were just doing the first reading to get the application advertised," Grimstead said. "Now we will get the information before we hold the public hearing."

County Commission Herman Epp said the reason behind the decision was to allow councillors some time to interpret the information about the application before hearing public submission and making the decision. Previously, the council was not given the information before the public hearing, on the day they decide the fate of the application.

"I think this way we can save costs on advertising," Grimstead said. "Now we will have all the information before first reading and it may not even get a first reading."

The council used their new format at their last meeting held August 25. One sub-division application did not receive first reading as a result.

munity support."

But besides the general comments about the area hospitals, McLellan had little else to say about future funding cutbacks or the possible fate of medical services offered in the facilities. She did say more concrete answers would be forthcoming after the round table meeting and after more local meetings planned for around the province under the direction of Diane Mirosh, Minister Responsible for Health Planning.

No dates as to when those meetings could take place were discussed.

this year.

Wiebe, a retired chicken farmer with no previous record, told the court that he had begun counselling on his own in Three Hills. He was given 12 months probation for the crime and ordered to undertake a psychiatric assessment.

Wiebe was also ordered to stay away from the swimming pool in Didsbury during his probation and to avoid any contact with the victims or witnesses.

school as a condition of their probation.

Two men were handed a one day prison sentence and 12 months probation after pleading guilty to break and enter.

Darcy Spooner and Stephen Young, both 22-years-old, changed a not guilty plea to guilty in Didsbury Provincial Court last week. The two had been charged with a break and enter incident earlier this year at the R&E Tire in Carstairs. Spooner had been arrested close to the site of the break in and Young later turned himself in to the RCMP.

Provincial court Judge Brian Stevenson handed out the sentence for the two and also ordered them to serve 100 hours community service and to find jobs or enrol in

A Calgary man walked away from charges of making harassing phone calls after the charges were stayed in Didsbury Provincial Court last week.

Gregory George Ligertwood had been charged with the offence after a series of telephone calls had been made to a local home but was let off when the judge called the crown "negligent if not dilatory" for failing to release evidence, in the form of two audio tapes, to Ligertwood's lawyer.

The lawyer had asked for another adjournment in the proceedings because of the delay when the stay was ordered.

Shortage expected in tax revenue

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

A mix up in assessment of taxes may leave the county $100,000 short in expected tax revenue.

County Comptroller/Treasurer Harold Johnsrude told county council the tax revenue line may be $100,000 under budget this year because of a $5 million mistake in assessment of a county business.

"We are aware of it and we made sure the assessment of the property was made according to the act," Johnsrude said. "We will have to see what happens at the court of revision but we may have a deficit at the end of the year."

The actual amount of the overassessment totalled $125,000 in taxes but Johnsrude said an extra $50,000 had been built into the budget to cover changes in assessments resulting from the court of revision decisions.

The actual shortfall won't be finalized until the end of September when the court of revision is completed.

Help wanted in car break-ins

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Olds RCMP are asking for public help in relation to a series of thefts from motor vehicles in the Olds area.

In a press release issued last week, Olds RCMP Sergeant D. Lee said public information about the thefts was needed to help solve 17 complaints which have occurred over the past two weeks.

"This recent rash of criminal activity is a grave concern to all," Lee said. "Investigation to date has surfaced few leads and for that reason the RCMP are requesting the public's help with any information concerning these thefts."

Lee said the public can get information to the detachment by calling direct or by using the Crimestoppers line. Through Crimestoppers, tips leading to arrests can result in a cash reward. The caller's identity does not have to be revealed.

If you have any information about the crimes, call the detachment at 556-3323 or Crimestoppers at 1-800-661-8477.

Travel restricted near Sundre

Motorists are being advised to be on the look out for traffic restrictions near the Sundre area as construction begins on the Red Deer River Bridge.

Alberta Transportation and Utilities said restrictions will take effect Wednesday as repairs to the bridge on Highway 14 begin.

Crews are working to apply a waterproof polymer coating to the bridge deck which will help protect the pavement surface and make the bridge surface more skid-resistant.

Traffic will be reduced to one lane at various times throughout the construction. Signs, traffic lights and flags will be used to help direct traffic travelling in the area.

Construction is expected to be completed by September 17.

Uninformed

The recent decision by the County Council to consider information on sub-division applications before passing first reading is short-sighted.

Council, which used to wait until the public hearing on any application, basically rubber stamped first reading for every application. But now they are likely to fall into the trap of unfairly treating some applications because of a lack of information.

Council will now make the decision whether or not to allow first reading of a by-law for sub-division before it has gathered all the information they normally acquire to make that decision. One application was allowed to fall at the council's last meeting under this new procedure despite the lack of input from Alberta Agriculture and Health, two reports normally considered before the fate of the application is decided.

Council argues that the new procedure will save time and money on advertising; applications for sub-divisions that council feel they would never allow wouldn't go beyond the vote for first reading on the by-law. Saving money is a welcome trait in government, but in this case it leaves too much room for unfairness. Council does not hear reasons why the land owner wants to sub-divide. They do not hear whether or not government agencies consider the sub-division to be appropriate. They do not hear how neighboring land owners feel about the proposal. No where near the necessary information for council to make an informed decision is at hand when the by-law is voted on. That makes council's actions, at best, knee-jerk reactions.

The idea to give council members more time to digest sub-division application information is a good one. Quick decisions can be as bad as under-informed ones. But along with the new procedural changes, council needs to change their time guide lines. Applications must be given the time they need to allow all the information to be gathered before they vote for or against it. Not only will this protect the applicant, but it will also protect council from charges of favoritism.

Agriculture plus

Dear Editor:

Your August 4 editorial on sub-division within the county contained many positive contributions to the discussion on this important subject. I would like to add several thoughts in support of County Council's decision on July 28.

After lengthy public notice and much thought, deliberation and recommendations from planners, County Council has correctly decided to rezone a proposed 23 acres for country residential development - a rural project which has the potential to become a very positive addition to a fine agricultural community. The issues which this decision dealt with are important:

1. A more planned approach to subdivision: Many productive quarter sections are being cut up by farmers and others who remove from titles large (5 to 10 acre) home sites for residential use. If this is the only way to accommodate demand for rural living, it results in widespread intrusion of residential development into agricultural lands. These developments need not have any restrictions on type, number of buildings or other characteristics. Many now have beautiful homes on them, however, others are very temporary looking. Unfortunately, County Council can do little to stem the tide of almost 200 "first-parcels-out" per year due to provincial government regulations and processes. This directly affects a dramatic amount of farmland (an estimated 1,000 acres per year) in this county alone. Also the effects of a new residence located within close proximity to intensive agriculture can restrict future development.

Our proposed new subdivision, containing two acre parcels, will be regulated carefully from the outset to fit into the natural and agricultural environment and present a quality standard for homes, fences and any other structures. This is for the protection of value for all homes in the subdivision as well as for the surrounding residential properties.

2. Minimal impact on farmland: At the public hearings, none of the surrounding farm neighbors presented information or concerns to council in the public hearings to indicate that their farming operations would be affected. Moreover, this planned subdivision is more likely to reduce the demand for more "first parcels" to be taken out of farming quarters and make it easier for farmers to compete for land. We have enjoyed our good relationships between neighbors even though the area has a mixture of acreages, cattle grazing, winter feeding, dairy, rural industry, farming and even a meat processor nearby. In addition, our remaining rangeland, due to carefully planned "cell" grazing, fencing and proper drainage has been able to increase its carrying capacity by nearly 100 percent without the aid of fertilizers or heavy capital expense. This has been done while still providing for a natural habitat for abundant wildlife such as deer, ducks, owls, hawks and other species.

3. Effects on county taxpayers: After well publicized notices seeking public input, council has acted properly on behalf of all involved. Only one neighbor, an acreage resident, expressed a desire for proper planning for noise abatement and this was constructive.

One of the main reasons for advanced public notice in land redesignations by council is to ensure that all affected residents and taxpayers have opportunity to write or voice their concerns. For this democratically based system to

Extradition concerns

Dear Editor:

There is something fundamentally wrong with the treatment John Demjanjuk has received for the past number of years. There doesn't seem to be a media discussion of this aspect of his case. A person may be extradited (from Canada, the U.S. or Britain, at least) for a specific crime. A person may not be extradited to another country so the authorities can hold him in investigative custody indefinitely until they can find a case against him. But that is precisely what is being done now to this man in Israel. He was extradited because a prima facie case against him was presented that he was "Ivan the Terrible". Subsequent investigations have established that was not true. A person being acquitted of a charge must be released, not held to see if the authorities can come up with another one.

The prosecution of John Demjanjuk has raised legitimate questions about all prosecutions of "war crimes" in Israel or where Zionist interests are the motivating factor. There appears to be less concern with justice than with politics in such cases. The Imre Finta case in Canada cost the taxpayers millions but after the jury acquitted the Crown simply appealed all the way to the Supreme Court of Canada where it now sits. It is more politics than justice which prevents the Israelis from letting Demjanjuk go and keeps the money flowing for such prosecutions in Canada. In John Demjanjuk's case, he has been and is being held without any just cause. He is innocent until proven guilty and he has never been proven guilty of anything so far. Why then have 14 years of his life been spent behind bars? Maybe it is too embarrassing both to the Americans and the Israelis to let him go.

Those who withheld evidence from his defence counsel in the U.S. and those who pursued this case like the late Armand Hammer have a lot to answer for. The U.S. should maintain a simple principle: if the crime for which a person is extradited from the United States is not proven, then the person should be returned immediately to the country from which they were extradited. Only if a country seeking extradition presents a specific case for which evidence is proven in court, only then should a person be taken against their will from their home, family and country.

The same rules of fundamental justice should apply to all people impartially. Polyukovich in Australia (recently acquitted by a jury of war crimes), Finta in Canada and Demjanjuk in Israel have proved that war crimes trials are an expensive farce. Some judges and all jurors have rejected these charges as unjust. Sir Hartley Shawcross, one of the original Nuremberg prosecutors, spoke against this process in the House of Lords when it was proposed in Britain.

The public opinion

by Dave Derksen, Chairman
County of Mountain View
School Board

Once again the provincial government has ordered a review of the child welfare act, and once more there were recommendations for drastic changes.

Some recommendations were to put child welfare under education or to split the governance of child welfare between social services, education and health.

I believe these recommendations only conceal or distract the public's attention from the real issue.

Child welfare only needs sound policy development by knowledgeable people who have experienced in policy development. I believe these developing policy should be people who have had experience in the trenches of the client and the care given.

Too often the care giver is not consulted by policy makers or those doing the review.

The care giver is in the trench doing the work, experiencing the successes and failures and is never consulted about the need for improvement.

No matter how many changes are recommended or which department is to administer child welfare, the fact remains that the people, such as the civil servants who are hired by the government, will be the ones who will interpret and implement the changes.

The civil servants have had their way for so many years that unless Mr. Cardinal (Minister of Social Services) removed the majority of civil servants from these positions, recommendations will remain just recommendation. If new personal is not given a chance to interpret and implement the changes then the public will once again have had the opportunity to contribute to the salary of just one person, the reviewer, rather than helping the children which was supposed to be the whole point.

(The public opinion is a weekly feature of the Review which will highlight various public opinions on a number of issues.)

A stand for prohibition

Dear Editor:

Canada's federal Liberal Party has adopted a "get tough on crime" policy as a major plank in their election campaign platform. That's good -- but better still would be to get tough on the two major causes of crime, namely 1. alcohol/drugs, 2. pornography (all pornography not just child pornography as suggested by the liberal politicians).

That should be a major plank in the platform of every political party at every level of government: municipal, provincial and federal. Why in the world hasn't it been?

Prohibition is the answer to the problem of alcohol but the general population and even many politicians have been deceived into believing that prohibition failed. The truth is that during prohibition there was less brutality to and less neglect of children, deaths from cirrhosis of the liver fell by 54.3 percent, the crime rate decreased dramatically enabling closure of many prison and jail cells, industrial worker lateness, absences, accidents, deaths were all greatly reduced, deaths by car crashes, falls, drownings, fires were all greatly reduced, and there was a significant improvement in the national economy.

Prohibition is the answer also to the pornography problem. Producers and sellers of pornographic materials must be recognized as the criminals they are and dealt with in the same way that other dangerous criminals are dealt with. All pornographic material must be confiscated and destroyed. This is just common sense, not great wisdom.

ticipate in the process and express their views on matters that deeply concern them. Innuendo and letters-to-the-editor, although interesting, are not the vehicles which enable elected officials and their administrators to properly execute our Acts and By-laws and their related responsibilities.

The new subdivision will be accessed in such a way that the county will not require any changes or upgrades to the roads in the area. This is fiscally responsible on council's part. Many times the sale of an acreage out of a quarter section creates a cost of upgrading or even building a road to accommodate the new development. In the future, taxpayers will be demanding that any further development show net benefit to taxpayers and not require costs in excess of the returns from the projects. This is a nationwide reality which we have to accept.

4. Impact on community services and the local economy: The proposed subdivision will be located between Carstairs and Didsbury on the Westcott Road. This location is easily accessible by school buses and well served by electricity, gas and telephones making it cost effective for all concerned. It will not unduly strain nearby schools or other services but rather it will enhance the economy for these nearby communities.

Many of us recognize that there remains a high demand for rural living for farmers and people who provide goods and services to farmers and others. For example, this county has one of the highest percentages of off-farm employment in Alberta. This speaks volumes about the opportunities within the county for farmers and farm families to gain additional income. Income used for sustaining production, for travel, for recreation, for extras and for education. Many of these off-farm jobs are directly or indirectly related to the population in the rural and nearby urban areas: schools, hospitals, service businesses, construction, transportation, recreation and value-added agricultural processing. We really do live off each other's personal needs in addition to producing excellent crops and livestock. This creates a stronger and more sustainable community. And, this area is attractive for agricultural processors who require many services and employees to operate plants and related businesses.

The sustainable future for this area is a diversified, value-added economy and a growing population based on our renewable resources including forestry, agriculture, recreation and people. Agricultural production on its own, in places where farms have grown larger each generation, has killed off small communities and eroded the "people" and community services which we all need and enjoy. This need not be the case in a community so beautiful, productive and diverse as this county. Our combined efforts to improve agriculture and rural communities must not cease. The wrong fix for agriculture is to continue with government support based on interest subsidies, acreage payments or volume-of-production payments where the largest producers receive the largest subsidies. This has created extra demand and higher prices for land by farmers to expand and to benefit by even greater volumes of production. And this subsidy induced expansion often results in a net lower employment, fewer farms and weaker communities. Many other communities across the prairies are examples of this unfortunate consequence.

However, the marketplace can and will correct the problem if given the chance. Too often governments, lobbied by industry and association leaders, think they have a better idea by creating inflated expectations, unrealistic restrictions or shameful subsidies using deficit financing. It is my hope, along with all thoughtful producers, that this cycle will end. I believe we can all work together in a renewed spirit of pioneering and cooperation to accommodate and enhance all of the things which we have been blessed with in this area, including those people who chose to make this county their home and their future. But we must show leadership and courage. I believe council has done just that.

One county resident has widely circulated a letter implying that my affiliation with Olds College and many previous rural and agricultural initiatives is inconsistent with development of this county residential project. Another has implied that those who subdivide are enemies of agriculture. While I respect their rights to state their opinions, regrettably there are few solutions offered.

First, those who have worked with me over the past 25 years are the best ones to judge my commitment to a progressive agriculture within a sustainable community. Second, my commitment to education in agriculture includes the development of a better understanding of the benefits of putting all of our resources to work to add value, avoid waste, increase productivity, and to become full partners in "country building" with our customers, the 97 percent of Canadians who are not farmers.

Finally, my hope for the future is that tomorrow's farmers will be those who possess the skills, the training, the attitudes, the desire and the necessary thrift to make farming a good business and a good life. If they happen to inherit the privilege of farming as well it may be easier, but this should not be a basic requirement to live in and enjoy this county. Thank you for allowing me the space to respond to these important issues.

Respectfully,
Lloyd Quantz

The Lunchbag Checklist

Get set, ready, GO! The students are heading back to school and for the all the kids who eat lunch at school, here is a checklist to help organize and monitor the nutrition level in the lunchbag.

Does the lunch include:

___at least 2 servings of whole grains?

___a vegetable? It can be offered as soup, juice, fresh vegetables or lettuce and cucumber in a sandwich.

___a fruit?

___a beverage?

___a meat, meat alternate or milk product?

___a small number of high fat foods? Remember butter, margarine, salad dressings, many lunch-eon meats, 32 percent MF cheese, cookies or chocolate bars are all higher fat foods.

___a surprise? A surprise can be a non-food item such as a cartoon or short note telling your child how wonderful they are.

___foods your child said he or she wanted to eat?

___a way to keep hot foods hot or cold foods cold?

___is the meal appetizing? Will it be a "keeper" or a "trader" lunch?

Some creative ideas for lunches can be found in magazines and cookbooks. Mount View Health Unit has an information sheet

"What's in the Bag?" which you can pick up from your local health unit office.

Buying all or part of lunch at the school may be an answer for some parents and their children. If this is the case, encourage your child to buy the most nutritious choices using the checklist.

Ask your child about the variety of foods available to buy at the school. In some schools, choices are very limited so non-nutritious foods are the easy foods for your child to buy. As a parent, you can encourage the principal to have healthy foods available. Nuts or seeds can replace potato chips; fruit juices instead of soft drinks; fruit leathers or raisins in place of licorice and candies are some easy ways to sell healthy foods in schools. In addition, some elementary schools can participate with the School Milk Program from the Alberta Milk Producers Society where milk can be purchased at cost.

Whether you are packing the lunches or counting on your child to buy foods, encourage your child to keep the healthy choices from Canada's Food Guide in mind. Wendy Benson, R.D. is the Community Nutritionist at Mount View Health Unit. She can be reached at 221-8000.

BARBARA

KLEBANOFF'S three year old son Maxwell has Niemann Pick, a disease characterized by progressive mental and physical deterioration, and early death.

"Nursing support makes it possible for Maxwell to stay at home with his family, and have the best life possible. Unfortunately, because of government reductions in home care, we are forced to pay for some nursing services privately. If we couldn't do that, Maxwell would be in a hospital. And hospital care is much more costly to taxpayers than home care."

"I believe if parents were given more support they wouldn't need to bring their children into the hospital as much, and they could care for their children at home." In addition to caring for the sick, nurses help other Albertans stay well by focusing on illness prevention, education and counselling. Unfortunately, Albertans don't have enough access to these types of services.

ALBERTANS DESERVE A HEALTH CARE SYSTEM THAT PUTS THE NEEDS OF PEOPLE FIRST. As Canadians, we have the right to expect an affordable, comprehensive level of care, easy access to services and equal treatment regardless of our age, gender, income or race.

ALBERTA nurses believe there are ways of reforming the health care system without jeopardizing its quality. Random cuts are not the answer. We need a plan. Given the chance, nurses could save taxpayers' dollars by providing more community-based health services that focus on care and keeping people well.

NURSES want to help provide a superior health care system to Albertans. But government cuts that close hospital beds, reduce funding to community health services, and lay off staff are hurting a health care system that is the envy of the world.

In government roundtable talks, nurses will be representing the needs of Albertans in health care reform. ALBERTA NURSES INVITE YOU TO CONSIDER THE DIFFERENCE NURSES CAN MAKE.

Peak performs professionally

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Though only an amateur theatre group, Peak Theatre Players of Sundre is proving just how good amateur can be.

Back from a week long stint at the prestigious Fringe Festival in Edmonton, Peak actors are just coming down from a performance high which saw them sell out tickets to all five performances.

Didsbury's Ed Longwill, who played the lead role in Peak's entry to the Fringe, said he and the other members of the cast are still amazed by their experience there.

"It was such an experience," he said. "We were only there for a week but it felt like a month. There were so many things and events to see. It was really intense."

Peak garnered a spot in the Fringe after winning the 1993 Alberta One Act Play Festival with their version of Pinter's "A Slight Ache". As a result of that win, Theatre Alberta sponsored the play for the Fringe, paying the entry fee and, Longwill said, promoting the heck out of the play.

"They really did a lot of work promoting; standing out on the street corner and selling tickets along with (Peak Theatre President) Brian Bailey and (performer) Paul Pantaleo."

Longwill said their efforts were a large part of the reason why the shows were so successful, but he also added that a review of the play in the Edmonton Journal, touting it as one of the best in the festival, did much to help as well.

"I think most of the folks there must have been somewhat surprised," Longwill said. "Here's this little group from Sundre, all amateur actors, and we really did well."

So well in fact, ticket sales covered expenses for the group including actors Longwill, Cheryl Goodwin and Paul Pantaleo, director Sandy Watt and technician Brian Bailey to travel to and stay in Edmonton and left a little over to contribute towards the arts centre the group is attempting to build in Sundre.

Longwill credits their success at the festival and in other performance ventures partially to chance and partially to personalities.

"I think there is a lot of serendipity involved in terms of the group of people who got together originally," he said. "And the people who have gotten involved over the years have always shown interest and enthusiasm, they are always willing to learn and they are driven to be creative."

Longwill, who had done stage acting while living in the U.S., said it was this dynamic that drove him to return to the stage when he moved to Canada.

"When I came here I hadn't intended to get involved but when I saw (Peak), I said this is different, this is good, and now here I am."

Longwill, despite some exhaustion from the effort involved in the Fringe experience, is currently in rehearsals with Peak for their next presentation, "The Melville Boys", which will play in Sundre October 8, 9, 15 and 16. Staging of the play, along with most of Peak's efforts over the next year, will be focused on encouraging community support for the proposed arts centre in Sundre. In the drawing stage for the past two years, Peak organizers are now fundraising to build the centre.

"That's what we will focus on now," Longwill said. "We haven't really thought about even entering the one act competition again this year because of that. But we will see what happens."

Fresh faces

Council offers canola swathing tips

Abundant moisture in most of Canada's canola producing areas has contributed to the development of canola crops with great potential for high yields. However, with temperatures being similar to those experienced during last year's growing season, canola crops are maturing in temperatures that are much cooler than normal summer temperatures. Canola producers are once more keeping their ears tuned to weather forecasts and speculations of an early frost.

"There is nothing canola producers can do about the weather," said Nick Underwood, crop production co-ordinator for the Canola Council of Canada, "but they can adjust the swathing stages of their canola to provide the maximum amount of security possible when faced with forecasts for frost."

Canola left standing in a frost is impacted more harshly than canola in a swath. Through trials conducted at Canola Production Centres over the past three years, the Canola Council has accumulated swathing data for both Argentine and Polish varieties and has been able to identify critical swathing stages to maintain optimum canola yield and quality.

"Swathing of Argentine canola should be completed when seed color change is 40 percent on the main stem," Underwood said. "Canola crops are at the critical 30 to 40 percent swathing stage for only a short period of time which can range from a few hours to a few days depending on the weather, therefore we suggest swathing at earlier stages in order to stay within the 40 percent maximum."

College horse barn raises tradition

Traditional barn raising parties never seem to go out of style. Such events often bring out the true spirit of helping hands in a community evolving over generations of families and friends.

Olds College is joining in on their own version of that tradition with a first-ever barn painting party to be held on the College Farm Friday, September 17th. Starting at 3 p.m., staff, students and their families will be busy restoring the College's landmark facility to a rich vintage red exterior.

Campus Recreation Organizer Jo Ann Parliament, who is coordinating the event, stresses that painting a barn does not have to be all work and no play. "The best part about this party is that participants only have to paint for, at most, one hour. After that, anyone who pitched in to help is welcome to enjoy a free barbecue and dance under the big top tent we'll have set up just outside on the grass." Parliament says anyone who wishes to attend the barbecue but who prefers not to paint is welcome to join in, providing they pay for their meals in advance.

Also planned for the fun will be local square dancers showcasing their two-step and line dance talents, followed by the dance music professionals at Canadian DJ Services. "For the kids, we've arranged to have Ralph Urlacher and his team of horses take them around the farm on a horse drawn wagon tour. There will be lots of games and prizes to be won by both the youngsters and the adults just for showing up," Parliament said.

This isn't the first time changes and improvements have been made to the horse barn. Many College Alumni recollect the original location of the horse barn being situated closer to the arena where the farm office stands today. Years ago, in order to accommodate the construction of the Animal Sciences building, the barn was moved north and east and then turned a quarter of the way around to the location where it presently sits.

Earlier this year, a $5,000 matching grant from the Alberta Historical Resources Foundation helped re-shingle the barn's roof. One of the prime stipulations for the re-shingling project was that it be designed to resemble the original appearance of the near century-old buildings. For that reason, it was determined that only cedar shingles would be used in the process.

Vice President of Student and Support Services, Sharon Carry, feels the refurbishing work is well worth their efforts. "The barns are exceptional specimens of architecture for their era. Upgrading the facility's overall framework, floors, and windows will be phased in progressively as funding opportunities arise...but I think it's important that we do our best to preserve these facilities as close to their original condition as possible."

If you are interested in attending some of the events held at the Barn Painting Party, please contact Campus Recreation Organizer, Jo Ann Parliament, at (403) 556-8217 before September 15th to reserve your barbecue tickets. The $8 fee also includes a dance and entertainment.

PERSONALITIES

Cadet takes top honor

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

A Didsbury cadet is proudly sporting a new medal these days, a new medal won for good conduct.

The first in the Didsbury Service Battalion to receive a good conduct medal, Tim Kaczmariski is understandably happy with his achievement.

"I'm the only cadet in Didsbury to ever get one," he said. "It really means a lot to me."

The medal for good conduct, which names Kaczmariski as a top cadet, was presented to him at a recent band training camp near Vernon, B.C. Each week of the camp, which lasted 4 weeks, one top cadet was presented with award. Kaczmariski was presented with his in week two. Cadets from all over Canada took part in the camp.

Kaczmariski said the medal itself is for good conduct; following orders basically, which he said he doesn't have any problems with.

This is Kaczmariski's first year in the cadets. He joined up on the advice of a friend.

"My friend was in the cadets the year before and he told me how great it was," he said. "So I joined too."

The camp, at which Kaczmariski learned basic training type of exercises, including map and compass work, field survival and military dress, was a band camp. Kaczmariski currently plays the glock in the basic band.

And now that he has learned many of these military exercises, Kaczmariski, who holds the rank of Private, said he would be interested in making a career out of the military.

"I'll be glad to join after cadets," he said. "I'm thinking I'd like to join the full army or maybe the reserve."

Top form

Didsbury Service Battalion's Tim Kaczmariski added an extra honor to the corps reputation by winning a good conduct medal at a band camp. Kaczmariski hopes to make a career out of the military.

Flowers dominate at Lone Pine

A large number of flower entries surprised organizers at this year's Lone Pine Bench Fair held August 19.

The large number of flower entries was just part of the large number of total entries which grew to 759 from 660 last year. Organizer Jo-Anne Hannah said a total of 97 exhibitors took part.

"The judges had a long day in decision making but were done just in time before we opened the doors to the public at 7 pm," Hannah said. Judges for this year were Elsie Garson, Bernice Price, Judy Weber and Connie Neufeld.

One of the new contests at this year's fair was the Crisco Shortening category for the most delectable recipe. Winning entries were handed in by Evelyn Clarke who won first place, Eva Page who took 2nd and Deana Whitely in third.

The Fry's Cocoa category for the chocolatiest dessert was won by (1) Deana Whitely, (2) Eva Page, (3) Noreen Wiebe.

Winners of the Parkland Agri

Services special award for the sheaf of grain and the sheaf of grain and silage were Virgil Cipperly, Ray Hannah and George Kurtz.

Other top winners at the fair included top adult winners Eva Page, Deana Whitely, Jackie Leitch and Doreen Sawatzky. The top senior entrant was Anne Milne and the junior's top prizes went to Brittany Whitely, Jacque Whitely and Chelsey Stumpf.

When the doors opened for the public in the evening, one of the top attractions was the Alberta Association of Agricultural Societies' provincial quilt collection. The quilts, on loan from the owners for a 2 year period, highlight the best in craft quilt making in the province. Other entertainment for the large crowds included singing and music by Brenda Cipperly, Karla Jansen and Doug Peters and balloon creations by Bruce Dowell. Rose Goertzen and Wendy Thiessen were also on hand offering face painting.

Pre-harvest treatment sales brisk

Good moisture across the province has brought second growth in crops as well as new flushes of weeds, so producers are thinking about pre-harvest glyphosate says an Alberta Agriculture specialist.

"Bookings for commercial herbicide applicators for pre-harvest glyphosate—trade names Roundup, Laredo, Wrangler and Renegade—have been brisk so far," notes Mark Olson, regional crop production specialist in Fairview.

Glyphosate as a pre-harvest treatment is a good control for perennial weeds such as Canada thistle and quackgrass he adds. "However glyphosate, in the strictest sense, isn't a desiccant as many farmers have come to believe."

A desiccant is an agent that speeds up drying plant material by removing moisture. Desiccants such as diquat (trade name Reglone) disrupt cell growth by killing the plant immediately, just like frost. Glyphosate however, blocks protein synthesis of amino acids. This action is slower than traditional desiccants.

"In terms of reducing time to harvest, glyphosate will shorten the period compared to doing nothing, since green plants such as weeds and late tillers are killed," says Olson. "However, glyphosate won't reduce the amount of small and light kernels if the tillers have already headed."

When applied to peas, glyphosate can help obtain better quality by preventing earhtag he adds. Earhtag is an accumulation of dirt on the pea from the mixture of cell sap from actively growing weeds and dust caused by harvest operations. Earhtag can cause loss of grade, for example dropping from human consumption to feed grade. This is especially true of yellow peas that show dirt more readily.

"Farmers should be aware that glyphosate isn't registered on peas for seed, since there's evidence it affects germination the following year," he warns.

Recently, glyphosate was registered as a pre-harvest treatment on malt barley and seed grain (barley and wheat only). Olson recommends farmers consult with their local grain company because some maltsters won't accept grain that has had glyphosate as a pre-harvest treatment.

Pre-harvest applications of glyphosate should be when the percentage of seed moisture is less than 30 percent. Olson adds it should be applied seven to 13 days before harvest to ensure the best weed control and maximize harvest management benefits. "Earlier application may reduce crop yield and or quality, and may lead to an excess of glyphosate residues in the crop," he says.

Glyphosate controls quackgrass, Canada thistle, perennial sow thistle and most annual weeds. For best weed control results, apply when quackgrass is actively growing and has at least four to five green leaves. Canada thistle and perennial sow thistle should also be actively growing and be at or beyond the bud stage.

For more information, contact your nearest Alberta Agriculture district office, regional crop production specialist, or your chemical company representative.

Farm income forecasted high

Farm income projections for Alberta's agriculture industry in 1993 are the highest in almost 20 years.

While the realized net farm income for Canada is expected to remain at about the same level this year as in 1992, the realized net farm income in Alberta is expected to reach $1 billion. When adjusted for inflation, realized net income figures haven't been this high since 1974.

As well, total farm cash receipts from crops, livestock and program payments are expected to exceed $5 billion for the first time.

Farm cash receipts in Alberta's livestock sector are forecast to hit record levels of over $2.8 billion. Total livestock receipts will increase by 13 percent for the second year in a row. While a strong slaughter cattle sector is mainly responsible for the increase, hog receipts are also forecast to increase by about eight percent over 1992 levels.

"I am encouraged by the overall story told by these income figures," says Walter Paszkowski, Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development minister. "Although the crops sector is still experiencing difficulties due to international trade negotiations and last year's unseasonable weather, our efforts to diversify Alberta's agriculture industry are now being rewarded as we see the livestock sector flourish.

"These figures are certainly consistent with Premier Ralph Klein's new economic strategy for the province, as well as the industry's vision that resulted from the Creating Tomorrow process," he adds.

Paszkowski also notes the Alberta government's participation in support programs such as the Gross Revenue Insurance Plan (GRIP) and crop insurance has provided much needed support to the crops sector. Such programs have helped offset the poor quality crop harvested in 1992. Overall, crop receipts in 1993 are expected to fall by just over three per cent from 1992 levels.

BUSINESS

Didsbury funeral chapels join forces

The grieving process after the loss of a loved one is never easy - especially when you consider those difficult initial stages when arrangements have to be made and family notified.

The consultants at the Mountain View Funeral Chapels realize this. Service and sincerity have been part of theirs and the Didsbury Funeral Chapel's mandate for years.

Perhaps it is not surprising then that the two businesses have now amalgamated service into one operation; that of Mountain View Funeral Chapels in both Olds and Didsbury.

General Manager of the Olds operation Nadine Armishaw said negotiations about merging the two funeral chapels has actually been going on for quite some time.

"We just felt it was a natural progression for both us and the owner of the Didsbury Funeral Chapel, Earl Hoffos," said Armishaw who has been in the funeral business for 11 years now.

Hoffos, Armishaw explains, has agreed to take over managerial tasks at the Metcalf Funeral Chapel Limited in Innisfail where most of his relatives reside. Family is a crucial component to the funeral chapel industry and knowing how to best serve a customer often weighs heavily on being able to relate to the kind of closeness existing within smaller communities.

And the advantages continue. Amalgamating the two businesses will mean obvious improvements to service. The basic fact that staff, equipment and vehicles are more plentiful now are certain to serve as positive building blocks in the future.

"I am extremely pleased with how things are working out," Armishaw said. "Together with Ken Sherrick in Didsbury and us her in Olds, Mountain View Funeral Chapels are strengthening their commitment to our clients that much further."

Trusted and qualified arrangements can be made with confidence to the newly expanded Mountain View Funeral Chapels by phoning 556-3223 or 335-4773.

College to open U-Fish operation

A unique method of generating revenue has just been hatched at Olds College. Beginning September 4, a U-Fish pond will be operation at the dug-out on the College Farm.

Trout fishing enthusiasts are invited to attend the site's Grand Opening this Labour Day Weekend, September 4th-6th, starting at 8 a.m. Admission is only one dollar and the largest fish of the day receives that fish and all fish caught for free. No fishing license is required and there are no catch limits...just come out and have a good time," says Aquaculture Project Coordinator Barry Wright.

Wright explains that the dug-out-used by the College Farm for irrigation purposes has been stocked with rainbow trout since 1988 to keep the insect population down. The incentive for a U-Fish operation to be housed on campus came about as part of an Aquaculture Project Proposal submitted by Wright this spring.

Wright, who also works as an instructor with the Academic Upgrading Program at the College, developed the U-Fish project as a means of cushioning the effects his, and other academic areas, are experiencing with on-going government funding cut-backs. "What we have been experiencing in the upgrading areas alone is a steady decline in the kind and amount of assistance we are able to secure through traditional government grants. Opening up a U-Fish operation creates the potential for added revenue we otherwise wouldn't have access to in the current economic climate. We have a mandate to exploit these new areas of revenue generation."

Farm Manager Barry Schmitt believes the U-Fish will be suitable and innovative complement to the farm.

"Besides," says Schmitt "...all the major capital items we needed to make this project work were already in existence. All we had to do was come up with some operating money to help buy additional stock, and that money will be recovered once the pond has been operating for awhile."

But Acting Vice President, Denis Kennedy says the U-Fish pond really only depicts the potential for one benefit from the proposed Aquaculture Project. "Looking down the road, there may be longer-term feasibility of developing some extensive programming on this initiative dealing with revenue to help absorb some of the program expenditures that otherwise we would have to do without."

Above all, Kennedy sees the U-Fish pond as not only an original means of expanding entrepreneurial activity on the Farm, but also an inventive means of attracting visitors to the college campus. The interpretive tourism concept recently proposed as "EduFarm", for example, could potentially include such an attraction. Additional preliminary ideas for attractions and highlights envisioned with the jointly envisioned town/college promotion might include an interpretive farm demonstration area, greenhouses, riding stables, atriums, and a wetlands area.

If you would like more information about the U-Fish pond or the Aquaculture Project, please contact Aquaculture Project Coordinator, Garry Wright, at (403) 556-4610.

Housing starts jump in July

National housing starts jumped 11.4 percent in July to 162,300 units at a seasonally adjusted annual rate (SAAR), up from a level of 145,700 units in June, reported Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

In urban centres, starts of single-detached dwellings reached 63,700 units SAAR, up 4.3 percent from a level of 61,100 in June. Multiple unit construction expanded by 25.2 percent to 73,600 units, from a level of 58,800 units in June.

"The July performance is the best since April. The strength comes mainly from British Columbia and Ontario. In B.C., the higher level is more in line with the strong underlying market conditions. In Ontario, the advance came from the multiple rental sector, both private and public," said Gilles Proulx, Chief Economist at CMHC's Market Analysis Centre.

"Nationally, much of the advance in July was due to multiple units, where starts activity tends to be volatile. Starts of single-detached dwellings are increasing gradually but they will not offset expected swings in multiple starts during the next few months."

Urban starts in British Columbia increased to their highest level in almost three and a half years to 43,400 units SAAR in July, from 30,500 units in June. All types of units shared in the recovery although multiple condominium starts made the largest contribution.

Starts activity in urban centres of Ontario rose to 35,100 units SAAR from 28,800 units in June. The improvement reflects higher activity in rental units both private and public. Starts of single-detached dwellings fell slightly.

Urban starts in Quebec eased to 32,900 units SAAR from 33,600 units in June. A slight increase in multiple unit construction was offset by lower construction of single-detached dwellings.

Activity in the Prairies fell to 18,200 units SAAR in July from 19,500 units in June. Starts dropped in Alberta and Saskatchewan while they rose in Manitoba.

Activity edged up in the Atlantic region, to 7,700 units SAAR from 7,500 units in June. Starts were up in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, while falling in New Brunswick and holding steady in Prince Edward Island.

Protect our Children!

Know and Obey School Bus Laws

Coming from either direction you must stop when you see these signals displayed!
Stop at least 20 feet from the bus.
It is the law.

School Bus Danger Zones

HAZARD
WARNING LIGHTS

□ Flashing amber lights are pre-warning that the bus is preparing to stop.

■ Flashing red lights means that the bus is stopped to either load or unload school children.

Motorists should know...

School buses do not use the red flashing lights at special loading and unloading zones. At these stops the bus driver may activate the hazard warning lights. The bus driver drives off of the roadway onto the shoulder.
Motorists are not required to stop.

(Applies to all rural areas and towns with the exception of Olds which has its own bylaw).

BACK-TO-THE-BOOKS

School Days Are Here And Grown-Ups Have Some Lessons To Learn, Too!

1. Be Prepared To Stop Quickly When Near Schools & Playgrounds
2. Adhere To All Speed Restrictions In School Zones
3. Exercise Extreme Caution When Driving In Bad Weather
4. Use Good Judgment When Picking Up Or Dropping Off Children In School Areas
5. Never Pass A School Bus That Is Loading or Unloading Children
6. Watch For Children Suddenly Darting Out Into The Street
7. Look For And Obey All School Zone Signs
8. Check Your Car. Don't Let Bad Brakes or Faulty Steering Undo Your Good Driving

When you're out with your friends don't ride in a pack - It's illegal. Ride in single file.
 Ride on the right side of the street...move with the traffic and stay close to the curb.
 Never hitch onto moving vehicles...a "free" ride may end up in the hospital.
 Stunt driving is not allowed on streets and roads. Don't do it - it's dangerous.
 It is illegal to carry passengers on a one-seat bicycle.
 The law states that your bicycle must have a horn, bell or gong.
 Always come to a complete stop behind a crosswalk.
 Walk your bike across busy intersections.
 Always approach parked cars with care.
 A bike ridden at night must have a white front light so that you can see where you're going. It also has to have a red tail lamp, and at least one red reflector in the rear.
 You can't be too careful. Remember, it's up to you.

Signals for Safety - A Biker's Only Voice

You must remember the other drivers on the road - they don't know what you are doing or going to do, so always make your signals for safety. Use the left arm and hand for all turning and stopping signals. Signals should be made well before the turn and carried part way into it.

Check traffic behind you before changing lanes.

THERE'S NO ALTERNATIVE TO CONCRETE

Concrete is the basement building material with all the advantages.

It's a proven performer. Rugged Tough, Durable. A concrete basement will never burn or rot. And concrete is safe. Quality-controlled, concrete needs no toxic chemicals which may be hazardous to building occupants.

Concrete is an energy-wise choice. A concrete basement needs little heat or air-conditioning. And concrete walls are easily insulated.

Economically, concrete is a good investment. A concrete basement will add years of life to the foundation and considerable dollars to the resale value of your building.

Add up the advantages. There's simply no alternative to quality controlled concrete. The best basement building material.

Aquajets excel at provincials

by Sharon Fitzsimonds

Swimmers from the revitalized Didsbury Aquajet Summer Swim Club competed at the provincial championships in Edmonton on August 21 and 22, putting in an excellent performance despite a two year club layover.

The club, which began operations again this spring with the opening of the new Didsbury Aquatic Centre sent 7 team members to race at the championships.

The highlight of the event was a bronze finish for the 9-10 yr. relay team of Deanna van Dam, Amanda Schneider, Pamela Palardy and Ruth Fitzsimonds who took the medal in the girls 100m freestyle relay.

The same team also took a 7th place spot in the 100m medley relay at the event.

Other results included 5th place for Amanda Schneider and 13th place for Pamela Palardy in the 9-10 yr. girls 25 m butterfly, 5th place for Ruth Fitzsimonds and 10th place for Amanda Schneider in the girls 100 m freestyle and 6th place for Ruth Fitzsimonds and 8th place for Amanda Schneider in the 100m individual medley.

Jim Palardy took the best finish for the boy's at the competition, winning 5th place in the 11-12 yr. boys. 400m freestyle Palardy also took 10th in the 200m freestyle and 13th in 50m butterfly. Jay Meyer, the other male team member to compete at the meet took 10th in the 100m freestyle, 10th in the 50m freestyle and 7th in the 50m breaststroke. Meyer also placed 7th in the 100m individual medley and Palardy took 14th.

In the 11-12 yr. girl's competition, Didsbury's Tonya Plewis took 6th place in the 50m freestyle event.

Of the 48 swim club members, between 15-20 competed over the summer schedule at various meets around the province. Seventeen Aquajets raced at the regional swim meet held in Calgary on August 14 and 15 with the 7 members going on to the provincials.

Swim club coaches Lynn Chernow and Mark Stetson said they were pleased with the efforts of team members over their first season back, and found improvements in both new and experienced swimmers. The swim club season ended with the provincial meet and organizers plan to start another season again next May.

Bronze medal winners

Ramblers announce 93/93 schedule

The Didsbury Senior Ramblers Hockey Club have formalized their schedule for the upcoming Chinoock Hockey League season. Barring any problems in ice scheduling locally, the teams home opener is slated for Sunday, October 31.

Prior to the teams initial home start, they find themselves on the road for no less than 5 games prior to their return to the friendly confines of the Memorial Complex.

The team road journey takes them to Bashaw, Big Valley, Olds, Millet and Innisfail before hosting the "Bashaw Stars" on the 31st.

The league schedule has expanded to 30 regular season games this year so the team finds itself taking to the ice at least 2 weeks earlier than last season.

With the increase in number of home games, management has decided to extend its season ticket offer to September 15 for any interested subscribers. This allows patrons the opportunity to save almost 50 percent off gate prices as well as entitle them to concession vouchers and draw opportunities.

The initial response to tickets has been slow and management hopes that the added games and extension to the subscription deadline enhances the value to fans.

The Ramblers are about to embark on a sponsorship drive to sell advertising in their season programs. This is a great way for local businesses to show their support and gain ad space as well as season tickets in one format.

Notices will be posted announcing ice times and further information can be gathered from management or players.

"This promises to be an exciting season with the new teams and increased calibre of play," said team manager Larry Tennant. "And I hope that local fans and businesses recognize the time and commitment of the players and individuals involved by continuing to show their support to the team."

Just a reminder that the team is looking for volunteers in numerous capacities and if anyone is interested please contact Larry at 335-9414 or Alan at Mountain View Sports.

Hole-in-one wins new car

The ball is approximately six centimetres in diameter, the cup, about 12 centimetres. With dimensions like that, the chances of anyone sinking a hole-in-one from 150 yards away seem unlikely - yet that is precisely what Harvey McLachlan accomplished on August 19th at the 2nd annual Olds College Foundation Golf Classic.

McLachlan's swing of good fortune brought with it a 1993 Ford Mustang. Reflecting on his game that sunny Thursday afternoon, McLachlan quickly credits luck to his award-winning fate.

"I've been golfing for 30 years now and I've never been able to get a hole-in-one before, so it can't be anything else but luck," he said.

But McLachlan was not the only one out of the 180 participants in this year's Foundation Classic that left the Olds Golf Course with a prize. A number of additional winners were awarded watches, gift certificates, golf shoes, pull carts, putters, gift meat packs, and umbrellas for their efforts.

According to Olds College Foundation Executive Director, Robert Doolaege, the 2nd annual Golf Classic was really an event that benefited everyone. All told, just over $19,500 in donations was raised for the College. A portion of that total, $4,700, was brought in through the silent auction held in conjunction with the Golf Classic barbecue immediately following the golfing event.

All donations were forwarded directly to Olds College. Doolaege said he is proud of the dedication the public is showing for the Foundation through events like the Golf Classic.

"Support for the Foundation has now exceeded $8 million in commitments which will not only help enhance the quality of education at the College, but also strengthen the role we all play in building a better future for our students. Each investment is reflected in the quality of graduates entering into Canadian industry and society."

Lucky winners to the 1992 Golf Classic were:

- First Place winners overall were the golfers from Gary Grisak's team which included: Larry Elmer, Charlie Brenner and Rick Astle. All received watches courtesy of the Olds College Alumni Association.

- Second Place - John Van Doesburg, Scott McLeod, Todd McKay and Cam Bishop all won gift certificates from the Golden Acre Garden Sentres Limited in Calgary.

- Third Place - J.D. Whitney, Russ Hensing, Joe Lehan, and Don Matson took home golf shoes thanks to the Olds College Faculty Association.

- Fourth Place - Kelly Olsen, Tim McFetridge, Blair Wright and Barry Schmitt received new pull carts donated by Greenleaf Products Limited.

- Fifth Place - Monty Wild, Larry Verbitsky, Barry Hopkin and Lawrence Stewart won sets of binoculars donated by Alberta Pool.

- Sixth Place - Keith Woznesensky, Brian Hierath, Tom

Printz and Gary Wilson brought back putters and umbrellas donated by Grandan Business Interiors.

Second Low Gross and Second Low Net respectively were won by Earl Hargreaves and Ritch Nickell. Each brought home a Jumbo Driver donated by Butte Grain Merchants and Baby Trucking & Loading Limited.

First Low Gross and First Low Net were won by Keith Woznesensky and Linda Worth, commemorated each with watches donated by Dow Elanco Canada and Ward's Jewellery Limited.

The Reverse Door Prize - a trip for two to the Oak Bay Resort in Victoria, British Columbia - was won by John Scruten. The prize was donated by Don's Intra World Travel in Olds.

Recreation Views

by Ken Luck
Recreation Director

Following the summer break, the Didsbury & District Recreation & Culture Board reconvened on Tuesday August 24 in council chambers at which time member addressed a relatively heavy agenda.

Items arising under previous minutes included the Memorial Complex Multi-Purpose Hall custodial contract and Rosebud Valley Park development. Committee reports included an overview of revenue and expenses to August 18, the Directors report and a report on activities held in the Multi-Purpose Hall. Correspondence items were extensive and included the July/August recreation update from Alberta Community Development, a copy of the proposed planning process for the Town of Didsbury, the Alberta Sport Councils NCCP coaching update, customer service awareness test, Alberta Recreation and Parks Association annual conference and golf tournament, the 93/94 leisure ice schedule at the Didsbury Memorial Complex and transfer of funds from what was previously the community showcase account. New business items included proposed cost sharing on the social drama workshop co-ordinated by F.C.S.S., along with a request for support of the F.C.S.S. youth work experience program. Startec Refrigeration Services provided an estimate on an engineering study on the existing ice plant operation, a letter from the Didsbury Lawnbowling Club was addressed in relation to the proposed expansion of the clubhouse, policy was recommended on hours of service and consumption of alcohol in the memorial complex hall and arena while a letter from Roy Brassard was received regarding a potential exhibition hockey game in Didsbury featuring Team Norway and Team Canada. Next meeting of the Didsbury & District Recreation and Culture Board will be Tuesday September 28 at 7:39 p.m. in council chambers in the town office.

The annual ice scheduling meetings will be held on Tuesday September 7 in the lobby of the Memorial Complex. All groups requiring ice time for both the main & leisure ice surfaces are encouraged to be in attendance. The regular weekly schedule along with the weekend and special events schedule's will be finalized at this time. Avoid disappointment, if your group or organization wishes to book ice time on a regular basis or for a special event plan on attending this meeting. If you have any questions call our office at 335-8377.

For the next few months construction activity around the complex will be fast and furious. Last week Shunda Construction from Red Deer commenced on the building of the Didsbury Curling Rink.

Completion date has been targeted for next spring.

Along with the curling rink project, the complex hall will be receiving a face-lift, in particular the stage area. As a result, the MPR will be out of operation for the period extending from September 20 to November 1. Bookings for the hall will continue to be entertained for events occurring after completion of the stage roof project.

With the high school volleyball season around the corner, a reminder to groups that the recreation department will rent out its outdoor volleyball net for use on grass or sand. Please call the Board Office at 335-8377 for details.

Walking - Alberta's favourite pastime. What to Wear? Dress comfortably and according to the weather. Don't forget your sunglasses, sunscreen and a water bottle if you are going far.

Your walking shoes should be comfortable. They should be made from ventilating material, have a firm ankle support, an elevated heel, and a flexible instep. There should be a finger's width of room at the toe.

A good pair of walking shoes are well worth the money you spend for them.

Next Week: Staying Motivated.

Fletcher roping his way to the CFR

The Canadian Pro Rodeo schedule during the month of August has expanded over the past two years with the addition of several new Rodeos. The Jasper Indoor Rodeo and Fort Nelson, BC, joined the calendar in 1992 and this season contestants travelled to the Pincher Creek Fair and Rodeo as well.

Mark Fletcher made the long drive to Fort Nelson in Northern B.C. worthwhile by winning the calf roping for $901 with a time of 8.7 seconds. The Wainwright cowboy previously qualified for the Canadian Final Rodeo in 1990 and 1991. With his current earning at $10,486, Fletcher now stands seventh on the charts and is in a relatively comfortable position heading into the last month of the season leading up to the 1993 CFR.

Darren Zieffle of Consort took second place behind Fletcher and placed in the steer wrestling. He went on to win the roping at Jasper (8.3 seconds), where he also placed in the steer wrestling. The eight-year pro rounded out the weekend with a first place in the steer wrestling at Pincher Creek with a 3.7 second win. The $2,895 total paycheque finds him holding down the final qualifying position in the CFR calf roping lineup and in contention for the High Point Award.

Spring Coulee, AB, roper, Mervin Hofer picked up $781 for his winning 8.2 second run at Pincher Creek while Daryl Lausen, Carseland captured the steer wrestling at Fort Nelson with his time of 4.4 Lausen accumulated $1,115 when he also placed at Jasper, where Joe Lucas of Carstairs won the event when he stopped the clock at 4.2 seconds and collected $994.

The race for the tenth and final CFR qualifying position in the bull riding is beginning to tighten up, and Wes David puts the pressure on by earning $1,462 over the weekend, moving up to 11th. The Cremona cowboy rode to an 83 score aboard Wilf Giretz' notorious Fatal Attraction to win Picher Creek, and covered Northcott's Beetle Juice for 78 points to take second at Jasper.

The 1992 bull of the year, Copenhagen Redip from the Northcott outfit took Wayne Joyal to an 83 marking and first place at Jasper. The Calgary cowboy also split third at Picher Creek to bring his weekend earning to $1,097. The current season leader, Glen Keeley won his specialty event at Fort Nelson when he rode Peters and Son's Night Junction to an 81 score. The Nanton cowboy also placed at Jasper for a total of $1,093 for the weekend. Australian Glen O'Neil pocketed $1,127 following a 83 point winning saddle bronc ride at Pincher Creek on Big Stone's Vampire, and further placing at Jasper. Chris Andersen also placed at Pincher Creek, then went on to win Jasper with an 81 score aboard Northcott's Untouchable. Andersen took $915 home to Rocky Mountain House. The saddle bronc riding at Fort Nelson was won with an 80 point ride on Peters' Country Classic by Duane Daines. The Innisfail cowboy collected $605.

Millet riding event cowboy, Shawn Vant continued his winning streak in the bareback riding by capturing top spot at Pincher Creek with a 76 point trip on Big Stone's Buckshot. He also took third at Jasper and accumulated $1,141. Darren Clarke, another Australian cowboy travelling the Canadian circuit the season, won the event for $605 at Jasper when he and Northcott's Dark Alley put together an 82. Fort Nelson paid $764 to Dave Shield for his 78 marking aboard Peter's Billy Blue Boy.

Dawn Rude was the high money winner in the ladies barrel racing. The LaGlance cowgirl who rides a young mare she call M & M, won Pincher Creek with a 16.12 second run, then went indoors at Jasper to cross the line in 13.65 for second place and a weekend total of $1,191. Montanan, Charlotte Schmidt won Jasper with a 13.51 and pocketed $688.

Runoff

Running's like a magic drink,
The taste hard to explain,
The only thing you know for sure,
That urge to taste again.

It isn't something you can hold,
Like baseball bats or balls,
It's feeling that ticks like your heart,
And every day it calls.

Go for a run, the thing begins,
And then, before you know,
Out with the sweats, out with the shoes,
And out the door you go.

No end to life you may invite,
No failures you can bet,
Running makes breathing a who's who,
As fresh as life can get.

Linked by the love of step by step,
A path, a circled track,
Runners can't say exactly why,
But bet this, they'll be back.

The attempt to rid the ethnics of their ethnicity

The chief responsibility of early public schools in Alberta was to fuse the new province's wildly assorted ethnic groups into a coherent and workable society. It was not easy. On the plus side was the fact that most immigrant parents wanted their children to learn English. On the minus side were the hardships, suspicions and anxieties of these communities and, among the Ukrainians, a movement that set itself up in active opposition, not because of ethnicity but because of taxes.

When Nikon Shandro and his brothers called a ratepayers' meeting to organize a school near Vegreville, fellow homesteaders immediately protested. Taxation, they argued, was one of the reasons they had left Ukraine. Ah yes, replied the Education Department representative, but if children between seven and 14 did not attend school, their parents could be punished. Despite the resistance, the motion to form the school passed, taxes were set at $6 a quarter-section, and the settlers built a log school and hired a teacher for four months at $60 a month. Thenceforth, things went smoothly at Shandro School.

It was lonely for teachers in the "ethnic" districts. Unsuspecting educators could find themselves at war with ratepayers. In 1913, for example, the Department of Education received word that "nationalistic agitators" were trying to take over various Ruthenian (or what we would now call Ukrainian) schools. Supervisor Robert Fletcher immediately visited the trustees at Oleskow, Podola, Molodia, Zawale, Spring Creek and Stanislawow schools and "persuaded them to dismiss the unqualified Ruthenian in each case and engage a qualified teacher," although some of them were pretty reluctant.

The majority of these outlaw instructors had a "very indifferent education," wrote Fletcher. "Their written English was faulty in idiomatic expression, while their speech was characterized by indistinct articulation. Some of them could scarcely make themselves understood in either written or spoken English." Therefore, they had to go.

At Vladymir, Kolomea and Lwiw schools the trustees refused to obey Fletcher, so he promptly took over as "official trustee" and made the changes himself. The trustees' complaint to the department got nowhere. They caved in. Bukovina School north of Vegreville was tougher; when Fletcher replaced their teacher "about twenty ratepayers assembled on the school grounds... in no very pleasant mood. They shook their fists at the teacher and myself and the language they used was unparliamentary to say the least." One of the ex-trustees went into the school and dismissed the children.

That man was summoned before the Fort Saskatchewan police inspector and fined $5 and costs, but the rebellion continued. The dissidents set up a rival school nearby, all the pupils went there, and Fletcher discovered that the deposed board treasurer was collecting taxes to pay the Ruthenian teacher. Fletcher gave the rebels ten days to pay their taxes to him, and when this period lapsed, he seized the ex-trustees' horses. The following year, when the department-appointed teacher returned to Bukovina, "he was assaulted by two men, two women, and two grown boys." The woman identified as ringleader was sentenced to a $200 fine or a month in jail.

Tough tactics, but the department's determination paid off. In 1914 Fletcher was able to report that the elected Ruthenian/Ukrainian trustees were back in charge and performing their duties "quite smoothly." A few years later the first Ukrainians qualified as teachers. When historian John W. Chalmers, himself an educator, attended high school graduation, exercises in a Ukrainian community in 1960, he noted that "when the school staff marched into the hall, the entire audience rose in tribute. By that year every teacher was Ukrainian in descent, and many were graduates of that same high school." In fact, the once-marginalized group was now represented in every facet of Alberta life from business to politics.

(This story is one of hundreds appearing in "Alberta in the Twentieth Century," the magnificent 11-volume history of our province being produced, one volume a year, throughout the 1990s. You can see and purchase your copy of Volume 1, entitled "The Great West Before

New Rules!

Scavenger Hunt '93 has new rules. Bring in your entry forms with whatever portion you have completed. This is a fun filled activity that families can take part in until September 10. The prizes are great. You will be eligible for the prize at the locations that you visit. Look for the entry forms at the following places: Olds Agriculture Society office, Olds College, Custom Woolen Mills, Diamond T Pinzgauers, Olds Gazette, Rosebud Creek Herbs and Produce, O H Johnson Ranching and Tack Store, Sundre Museum, PaSu Farms, Pearson's Berry Farm, Olds Visitor Information Centre, Westway Hide-A-Way Bed and Breakfast and Seed Farm, Hamilton's Barley Flour, and the Sundre and Didsbury Farmer's Markets. Keep your eyes open for the pink form in other locations too.

"F" is for Fennel and for fish

Fennel has a licorice taste to its leaves and stem that can be used in place of celery in bread stuffing or cooked as a vegetable. Raw, it also makes an excellent hors d'oeuvre according to "The Joy of Cooking." Jenny Reed shares her favorite recipe so that we can get a good taste of this herb.

Fennel Stuffing for Salmon
1 medium apple, peeled, cored and chopped

1 small onion, chopped
1 thick slice of fresh bread
2 tablespoons fresh fennel leaf
1-2 tablespoons lemon juice
salt and black pepper

Tear the bread into small pieces and put into a mixing bowl. Add all the other ingredients and mix well. Sprinkle a little oil and add more lemon juice and/or fennel to suit taste and wrap in foil. Bake in the oven or over a barbecue.

Note: If you choose boned fish, roll small quantities of stuffing inside the fillets.

Fennel can be added to a white sauce to pour over the cooked fish. For a stronger flavor, fresh anise or chervil can be used. Dried herbs may also be used but since you may have difficulty finding dried fennel in the stores, why not dry your own?

Fennels are used with lentils, in rice and potatoes and even in apple pies. As with dill, use both the fern or the seeds of fennel. Ask at the Rosebud Creek Herbs and Produce booth at the next farmer's market for fennel and give this recipe a whirl.

Next week the subject is dill...the ferny type better known as Dwarf Feruleaf.
